

Global Leadership Fellows Program

The Emerging Market Institute's Global Leadership Fellows Program convenes visionary leaders with distinguished international careers to advance the frontiers of global business education and strategic affairs. Each Global Leadership Fellow is a world-class business leader whose expertise embodies EMI's vision of becoming the premier institute for emerging markets worldwide.

Spanning industries, cultures, and regions, the program reflects a deep commitment to transformative thought leadership and to cultivating the next generation of global business leaders. It focuses on four key arenas—Consulting, Corporate, Finance, and Technology—each selected for its strong relevance to the career aspirations of students at the SC Johnson College of Business.

Fellows dedicate time on campus and online to coach and inspire students and the broader Johnson community, forging powerful connections between academia, students, and the global business world
